HITCH'S WARNING.

Says the Contest for the Senatorship and Speakership Should be Made Properly - Public

WELFARE SHOULD BE REGARDED.

Candidates for Speakership Said to be Cochran, Schubert, Bryan, Selby and Needles. Machine Politics Should Be Abandoned in These Matters.

Nov. 7.—Chairman Hitch, of the Republican state central committee warning to candidates for United states senator and for the speakership of the house of representatives and to their backers.

His warning is in some respects interesting and is so regarded by the members of the Cook county machine, who saw it last night.

Mr. Hitch says: "There will be a number of candidates for both speaker and senator. Honorable ambition for position is commendable, but the contests involved should be conducted with a due regard to individual manhood and in a manner to satisfy the public welfare."

This is quoted from a final post-campaign bulletin issued by Mr. Hitch yesterday.

Mr. Hitch lives outside Cook county, and he is regarded in consequence as being more sensitive to the drift of political opinion in the country districts than the Cook county leaders. Remembering this, some of the latter were wondering last night what Mr. Hitch was driving at.

Did it mean, they asked, that the fight should be, as far as the head of the organization in the state could govern it, a fair and open and above board fight, the victory to belong to the man fairly winning it, or to be given to the ward of the boss who made a certain arrangement two years ago?

Others outside the machine circle, put a worthy construction on the words of Mr. Hitch. But they stand as quoted, and they are at least interesting and edifying in themselves.

The bulletin first speaks of the results of the election as a "triumph of patriotism rather than a purely political victory," and then goes on to give credit to the men of other political parties who helped win the fight. "Having thus added to achieving a mighty and important triumph," says Mr. Hitch, "they have a right to ask Republicans not to interfere with the fruits of the struggle."

President McKinley in sincerely assured in conducting his administration upon the principles the country will specifically feel the effects of a return of confidence and a revival of business, but it would be a crime for office follow the election and the inauguration the lesson of the crisis will be lost and the unity of the better elements of society destroyed.

The same principle may be applied to the contests which are to come in our own state as a legitimate result of the election.
Republicans will have a majority in both branches of the general assembly, and must organize the lower house and elect a United States senator. There will be a number of candidates for both speaker and senator. Honorable ambition for position is commendable, but the contests involved should be conducted with due regard to individual manhood and in a manner to satisfy the public welfare."

It is interesting to note that the fight for the speakership will be the struggle for the speakership of the house. This is always a coveted prize, but it is more so now than ever, considering the conditions under which the new legislature will convene.

It is well understood that if the elections giving the speakership to the Republicans will be carried into effect, the speakership will certainly go to the country. In this latter event the candidate most likely to be W. G. Cochran of Macon county, who has been twice speaker already. In case a Cook county man is given the place, Representative Schubert would have the backing of the Cook county machine. Other candidates with good backing are: Charles F. Selby of Sangamon county, "Tom" Needles of Washington county, and Charles Allen of Vermilion county.

BRYAN TO THE EAST.

Calls His Supporters Heroes Covered With Credit.

Nov. 7.—Bryan today received the following telegram addressed to his supporters: "In the hour of defeat I am greeting you. No words of praise can sufficiently commend you.
When I consider the eastern states sent word of their support to both conventions, that nearly all the eastern papers are against bimetallism, your fight appears remarkably creditable. You have shown yourselves heroes and events will vindicate the position you have taken. Continue the fight."

W. J. Bryan.

Bryan is receiving numerous telegrams and letters in response to his address assuring him they will continue to fight for silver as he recommends. He has not the 34th inst., for a reception at Denver.

KENTUCKY.

The Electoral Vote Still in Doubt.
Cincinnati, Nov. 7.—The Times-Star's London, Ky., special says the official returns show such discrepancies in the votes for electors as to make it almost certain the electoral vote will be divided.

Later—Kentucky Safe.
Louisville, Nov. 7.—With official returns from 106 of the 119 counties in the state and unofficial returns from the rest, McKinley leads Bryan by 433. Official returns from other counties are not expected to materially change it. These figures must stand till the state canvassing board decides the various contests and charges of fraud. The silver Democrats on the basis of 8849 plurality for McKinley in the Eleventh district still claim the state. They give no table of vote by counties, merely assert their figures are correct. The Republicans, however, give figures by counties from the eleventh district only two counties unofficial making McKinley's plurality 4380. It is probable Bryan may get one electoral vote owing to the fact that a large number of voters put the stencil mark opposite the name of the first elector. Instead of under the device thus causing the head of each ticket to run ahead of their colleagues.
In this way the foremost Democratic elector, W. D. Smith, gets more votes than the hind most Republican elector. The county canvassing board this afternoon completed the canvass of the Ninth ward, Louisville, with the result that McKinley gains 35 votes, raising his plurality in the state to 537.

DELAWARE.

The Electoral Vote May Be Divided.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 7.—Although the Republicans carried Delaware by about 4000 McKinley will receive only two of the three electors unless the matter is taken into court. The result is due to the factional fight in the Republican ranks. On the regular Republican ticket the name of one elector appeared as James O. Shaw and on the union Republican ticket it appeared as James O. Shaw, Sr.
The ballots on these names are counted separately. This gives John H. Rodney the highest Democrat a majority over Shaw.

WYOMING.

Official Returns Necessary to Determine Result.

Denver, Nov. 7.—The Republican's correspondent from Cheyenne, Wyo., says: With all Big Horn county to hear from and thirty-four scattering precincts the Democratic state committee has figured Bryan electors as follows: VanMeter 9180, Martin 9339, Queeny 9423. Mc-Kinley electors, Bryan 9139, Powell 9101, Malloy 9017. The Democrats claim that full returns will give them a plurality of 347. The Republican committee claim one McKinley elector sure and two probably.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Will Require the Official Count to Decide It.

Yankton, S.D., Nov. 7.—With the state complete, except Hamlin and McPherson counties and three unorganized counties in the Sioux reservation Bryan has a plurality in the state of 45. Hamlin and Mc-Pherson will give McKinley pluralities.
The reservation counties are expected to go for Bryan. It will take the official canvass to decide the result.

A BAD MAN.

jealous.

WILL NOT QUIT WORK

Chairman Hanna Proposes to Keep Up the Fight for Sound Money.

HEADQUARTERS WILL BE KEPT OPEN

Literature Will be Sent Out and Speakers for Sound Money Will be Sent Out to Preach Sound Doctrine.

New York, Nov. 7.—Chairman Hanna of the national Republican committee proposes to checkmate Mr. Bryan and the other advocates of free silver coinage, who announce that they intend to keep up the fight for their cause.

Mr. Hanna proposes to keep the national committee at work. He does not want to see disarmament at this stage of the fight. Even without the warning of Bryan's letter he recognizes the necessity of keeping up the fight against the free silver craze.

The national committee, which usually slumbers through the interval of three and a half years between campaigns, is to be very much awake and busy throughout the next four years if Mr. Hanna's ideas are carried out, and doubtless they will be.

His plan is to have a continuous Republican campaign for the next four years under his direction, headquarters to be established in New York or Chicago, with offices in charge, from which literature will be sent out and speakers assigned to keep up the fight against free silver.

"It is for the good of the country and the salvation of the Republican party," Mr. Hanna has said during the last two days to New York political leaders and campaign contributors, some of whom he met at the house of Whitelaw Reid on Thursday night.

"If you want to stamp out completely this political disease of silver, repudiation, and riot," Mr. Hanna has told the New Yorkers, "you must continue applying the remedy. The election shows the treatment administered during the campaign has not worked a cure; it only checked the progress. The medicine was all right as far as it went, but we must continue the doses. Then too, this old time plan of leaving the disease half cured won't do. It will be twice as hard to master the next time and the doctor will have grown rusty and inexperienced for lack of practice."

Most of the day Mr. Hanna spent calling upon leading business men in their offices here. He also discussed the plan with the members of the national committee still in the city and it was practically decided the committee will remain in active existence, assuming complete control of the Republican party in every state and acting as the political advisory board of the administration.

In the past the national committee has practically gone out of existence a few days after election, not reassembling until four years later, when a few members met to issue a call for the convention. A new chairman has been invariably chosen and the personnel of the committee has been radically changed for each campaign.
Everything has to be built up new and the whole political machinery of a presidential contest organized from the ground up. Valuable time is lost and many mistakes made while the new campaigners are gaining experience.

Chairman Hanna had to go through this same costly process of learning, and he thinks the Republican party ought to change the antiquated system.

His proposition has met with general favor both among politicians and business men and Mr. Bryan and the silver miners will not have the field to themselves by any means.

BRYAN TO THE POPOCRATS.

Tells Them How Patriotic They Have Been and Encourages Them to Fight On.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 7.—Bryan yesterday gave out the following: "Conscious that millions of loyal people are saddened by temporary defeat, I beg to offer a word of hope and encouragement. No cause ever had supporters more brave, earnest and devoted than those who espoused the cause of bimetallism. They fought from convictions and fought with that zeal that conviction inspires. Events will prove whether they were right or wrong.
Having done their duty as they saw it they have nothing to regret. The Republican candidate has been heralded as the advance agent of prosperity. If his policies bring real prosperity to the American people then those who opposed him will share that prosperity. If, on the other hand, his policies prove injury to the prople generally, those of his supporters who do not belong to the office holding class, or privileged classes, will suffer in common with those who opposed him.

Friends of bimetallism have not been vanquished they have simply been overcome.
They believe the gold standard is a conspiracy of money changers against the welfare of the human race and until convinced of their error will continue the warfare against it. The contest has been waged this year under great embarrassments and against great odds. For the first time during this generation the public mind has been centered upon the money question as the paramount issue. This has been done in spite of all attempts upon the part of our opponents to prevent it. The Republican convention held out delusive hope of international bimetallism while the Republican leaders labored in the interest of gold monopolies. The gold standard Democrats publicly advocated the election of the Indianapolis ticket while they labored secretly for the election of the Republican ticket. Trusts and corporations tried to excite fear of lawlessness, while they have been defying the law and American financial boasted independence but in spite of the efforts of the administration and its supporters, in spite of the threats of money lenders at home and abroad, in spite of coercion by the corporation employer, in spite of the trusts and syndicates, in spite of enormous Republican campaign frauds, in spite of the hostile influence of the daily press, bimetallism almost triumphed in the fight. The few states defeated bimetallism for the present but bimetallism emerges from the contest stronger than it was four months ago."

He expressed thanks to the Democratic, Populist and silver committees. He says the defeat brings no feeling of personal loss, for himself and wife. He says they find full compensation for what they have done in the love of millions of fellow citizens. He calls on all silver clubs to retain their organization and continue the study of the financial question and be prepared for the campaign of 1900.

THE PRESIDENT-ELECT WORRIED.

Will Remove Her to Cleveland as Soon as Possible—A Telegram From Chairman Roberts of Kentucky.

Canton, Nov. 7.—McKinley had an early breakfast this morning but not before the customary callers surrounded the house to try to catch a glimpse of him through the window. Mrs. McKinley is not well enough to be at the table. Her condition of health it has been noticed has worried the president-elect throughout the campaign. He is very anxious now to get her away from the excitement in Canton that at this time is considerable.
The first important telegram received this morning was one from Chairman Roberts of the Kentucky Republican committee, saying: "Official returns from 100 counties and unofficial from the remaining 19 gives Kentucky to Mc-Kinley by 475 majority. It is practically conceded we have won after a desperate fighting to the finish."

Letters and telegrams continue to pour in on McKinley by the thousands.

Will Probably Be Settled.

After the morning service at the Christian tabernacle tomorrow there will be a business meeting of the congregation.
It is probable that at this time the troubles which have existed in the church for so long a time will be finally settled.
The intention is that the congregation divide and two separate churches be organized. The property has been appraised and will be equally divided if the congregation separates.

ACTION OF THE MACON COUNTY BAR.

Tender Expressions by Brother Attorneys—Tributes from Political and Personal Friends—Arrangements for the Funeral.

Decatur citizens generally mourn the death of Charles A. Ewing, whose loss is universally felt and regretted.

Action of the Macon County Bar.
The members of the Macon county bar held a meeting this morning at the circuit court room to take action on the death of Charles A. Ewing. The committee on arrangements which had been appointed reported that it was deemed advisable for the bar to attend the funeral in a body. It was decided to meet at the court house at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow and go from there to the church and then to march to the cemetery.

On motion of Attorney W. E. Nelson the judge of the county court and the county officers were invited to join the bar in the exercises and become a part of the meeting. Judge Vail who was acting as chairman called upon the committee on resolutions to make a report. Attorney W. C. Johns read the following memorial which had been prepared by the committee:

Memorial of the Members of the Bar and Officers of the Courts upon the Death of Charles Adlai Ewing.

In the sudden death of Charles Adlai Ewing we have encountered a severe loss and sustained great sorrow.

In every relation of life he was a Christian gentleman whose classical education and charitable disposition made him conspicuous, admired and beloved.

To his family he was a devoted husband, a loving son and brother, and an indulgent and affectionate father.

He brought to the discharge of public duties and responsibilities personal pride in their performance, patriotism, firm convictions and an enlightened conscience.
As a lawyer he was learned, just, honorable, brave, courteous and a great foronside debater when aroused. By the dignity of his character and the gentleness of his demeanor he was conspicuous in maintaining among his brothers of the bar, that courteous, considerate conduct, in the forum and the office, which so becomes and adorns the disciples of a learned and honorable calling.

It is a personal loss to each of us that a leader has been summoned to a higher court; and that we shall no longer enjoy his genial companionship, encounter his powerful reasoning, hear his rich, reasonable pleading for justice, nor to be moved to laughter or tears by his eloquence.

To his wife, children, mother and sister we extend the deepest and most sincere sympathy in their loss and bereavement.
We recommend that this memorial be spread upon the record of the courts and copies delivered to his wife and mother.

William C. Johns, I. A. Buckingham, William E. Nelson and Josiah M. Ciokey, Committee.

The report was adopted and the committee was requested to present the memorial to the circuit and county courts that it might be spread upon the records.

Speech by Attorney Nelson.

Attorney W. E. Nelson arose and said that he felt something more should be said besides the simple presentation of the resolution. He said: "I can give personal testimony as to the character of our departed friend as I have been present during his entire professional life. I remember the first speech that he ever made in court. His father was alive then and was deeply interested in his son's career and I remember the talk we had as to Mr. Ewing's future. I know his father well as a most excellent gentleman and through twenty-five or thirty years I have been intimately connected with Mr. Ewing-his career as a lawyer. I have been connected with him in many interesting and important cases and I can testify as to his dignity and manliness. He was a manly man, of unimpeachable integrity, a delicate sense of honor and was properly imbued with the true spirit of his profession. He was always courteous and was dignified without stiffness." In closing Judge Nelson said that a fraternal and professional relationship of thirty years had terminated. All such must come to an end but few would bring such a profound feeling of regret.

Attorney I. A. Buckingham was the next to speak. He said: "Like Judge Nelson I have known Mr. Ewing throughout the entire time he has practiced at the bar. He has always been conspicuous for his honesty, integrity and ability.

During the time I knew him he never deceived me and I don't think he ever tried to deceive anyone. What he was he was from conviction and he was not afraid to speak his convictions. We always knew where he stood. He built his own monument and he built it well so that we can find no spot on that which shines forth in memory of his virtue. Few lawyers stood as high as Mr. Ewing and few citizens as well and but a very few would bring sorrow to the hearts of so many as has his departure from this life."

Attorney J. M. Ciokey said that he had known Mr. Ewing for twenty-three years and felt that he must voice his feelings.
He spoke of the life of the deceased, referring to his strong character, heralism in his make up, and the purity which was shown in his life at the bar. Mr. Ciokey also spoke of Mr. Ewing's church life, saying that when the First Presbyterian church was going through its darkest time Mr. Ewing was looked to for advice and the church owed to him its present splendid condition.

Attorney J. T. Whitley said that he had known Mr. Ewing for but five years but that he looked upon him as the model for the younger lawyers. He said he particularly liked him for the kindness Mr.
Ewing showed him when he came to the city a stranger.

John A. Brown also made a few remarks. He spoke of the many business relations which he had with Mr. Ewing while serving as master in chancery and of the excellent character which the deceased had always exhibited.

Attorney O'Mara expressed the high respect which he said he had always felt for Mr. Ewing and thought it would be a long time before his place was again filled.

T. M. Hohart spoke of Mr. Ewing's high political opinions and D. C. Corley spoke of the relationships he had with him as a neighbor. Attorney Webber paid tribute to Mr. Ewing's kindness as a man. He referred to a time when he had done for him a great personal kindness. He said that while Mr. Ewing and himself were on different sides in the division of the political parties he had discussed with Mr. Ewing political secrets, knowing that he would never betray a friend.

Edwin Park was another of the older men who had known Mr. Ewing for years and told of his early life. Brief remarks were also made by Attorney J. M.
Gray and Attorney Black.

States Attorney I. R. Mills spoke at length on Mr. Ewing's character. He referred to him as a model citizen who in all the varied relations he always stood on the top. In his family and church he stood high and of his business relations nothing could be said but words of praise.
His honor and ability as a professional man were never called into question.
Mr. Mills said that on all such occasions of bereavement as the one which was being held Mr. Ewing was always present.
He had prepared many a memorial.
There was one man present at the meeting. Mr. Mills said, who had requested that at his death Mr. Ewing should prepare the memorial, but the one was that Mr. Ewing had been first called away.

At 11:30 o'clock the members of the bar adjourned to meet tomorrow afternoon at 1:45 o'clock to attend the funeral.

Condolence.

At a called meeting of the board of directors of the Decatur Greenwood Cemetery association held at the office of the association on Saturday, Nov. 7, 1896,

Charles A. Ewing, Esq., for the past sixteen years a faithful and efficient member of this board, it was unanimously

Resolved, That the association has lost one of its most devoted friends and active promoters and having been intimately as-friend, a neighbor, and a citizen, whose broad and cultivated mind, with his reall who knew him.

Address THE EVENING REPUBLICAN, 126 South Water street, Decatur, Illinois.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1896.

We suggest as an issue for Bryan in 1900 the prohibition of the use of gold in the arts as a means of making more money.

The country having received Jones' and Bryan's farewell addresses it awaits with anxiety the addresses of Seward and Watson.

There are millions of Democrats who voted the Popocrat ticket under protest who will never do it again should a similar situation be presented in the future.

Bryan still talks about bimetalism just as if he believed that the free coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1 would result in bimetalism when the commercial ratio is 33 to 1.

When the Populists refuse to have anything more to do with the free silver Democrats who is there to blame the gold standard Democrats for refusing to associate with them.

The Springfield postmaster talked too much and Grover Cleveland removed him. Had Mr. Cleveland notified that postmaster before election what the result of his indiscretion would be it would have been called coercion by Bryan and Jones. In the one case the postmaster would have kept his job, in the other case he lost it.

Chairman Fisher of the Populist party has served notice that the party he represents will have nothing more to do with the Democratic party. This complication matters again. The free silver Democrats are talking about making Bryan their candidate again in 1900 and the question is: Is Bryan a Democrat or is he a Populist?

"The money the more work" was one of the rallying cries of the Populists. It did no occur to them that money could not be secured except in exchange for work or the product of labor. Let Bryan take a lesson. As the result of his defeat business men are resuming business. This creates a demand for work and the employer of labor will pay cash for labor and thus the true logic will be illustrated namely: "The more work the more money."

Who is the money lender so eagerly referred to by Bryan, Jones, Altgeld and company? The same laws govern one lender that governs another. There are many persons who are comparatively poor who loan some of their savings and there are money lenders who assemble, in the banking and other business, the money of others and loan it while there are still others who loan the money of estates and of wards and also those who loan large sums of their own money. Do these latter day alchemists propose to apply one rule to one of these classes and not to another? Suppose there were no money lenders, could business progress or enterprises be carried through? Could our cities and our countries make the improvements they do? Could the man who buys land for which he is unable to pay cash down buy the land and pay out on it if there were none who loan money. Thousands of honest men have borrowed money at a profit to themselves and the country who under the Bryan system would become paupers.

Democratic Districts Won.

The Bloomington Pantagraph: Our neighboring congressional districts have shown up well for the Republicans. In the Fourteenth, composed of the counties of Mason, Tazewell, Fulton, Peoria, Woodford, Marshall and Putnam, Representative J. V. Graff has been returned by a handsome plurality. He was opposed by Judge Worthington, of Peoria, one of the ablest campaign speakers on the Democratic side in the entire state, and this taken with the fact that the district was blocked out as sure for the Democrats, reflects much credit upon Mr. Graff. He carried all the counties but Mason, and while his plurality is somewhat reduced from two years ago it still stands as a strong testimonial to his favor with the people of the district. In the Seventeenth, composed of the counties of Sangamon, Christian, Menard, Logan and Macon, Maj. J. A. Connolly, is returned after a very hard fight by a good plurality. His competitor was ex-Senator B. F. Caldwell, of Auburn, who is a man of great influence in his party and an able campaigner. The triumph of Maj. Connolly over a Democratic gerrymander and a popular leader would go to show that the Seventeenth has come into the Republican fold to stay. In the district to the north of us, composed of the counties of Woodford, Livingston, La Salle and Bureau and twisted onto all shape on the map to make it safely Democratic, the Republicans have won a most notable victory. Representative Walter Reeves has been re-elected by a plurality of about 7000, carrying every county in the district. The Republicans of central Illinois should be proud of the work they have done and McLean's near neighbors have done best of all.

Jones and Coercion.

Why Jones of Arkansas should have been chosen as chairman of the Popocrat National committee has never been explained by anything that developed in the campaign. The choice may have fallen on him because all the effective leaders of the Democratic party refused to follow it farther than the Chicago convention and the Joneses became the leaders. This, of course, is largely mysterious, but that Jones should proceed to discuss the campaign and persist in dragging in, as an element, the employer and employee and their relation to the campaign is still worse. In the first place the employer and employee were not elements in this campaign except so far as Mr. Jones and other Popocrat mountebanks dragged them into it. Mr. Jones and his staff of political bandits tried to drag labor into the voting booth and there induce it to vote its own throat by voting to throw the country into panic and never ending uncertainty by adopting the same hair-brained policies that were tried centuries ago in the older countries of Europe and which have long since been abandoned as visionary and hurtful. Business men who want business, stimulated instead of depressed saw this move of Jones and his crowd and did what they could to save labor from the awful suicide to which Jones invited it. This made him mad. He assumed the right to give labor bad advice, but as soon as the employer of labor began to tell labor that the effect of Popocracy meant to close down business and still further cripple the market for labor, Jones of Arkansas called it coercion.

In his farewell statement he asserts that the labor vote was diverted from Bryan by the employer "by every kind of coercion and intimidation on the part of the money power, including threats of lockouts and dismissals and impending starvation." Bryan makes the same complaint. If an employer know he could not continue if Bryan was elected was it his duty to advise the man with labor to sell of the true condition or stand by and see labor deceived to its own hurt as well as that of the employer by Jones of Arkansas and others of his kind who employ no labor? If an employer know the election of Bryan meant the closing of his business why should he not so inform his men? If an employer when business had been suspended by the general prostration said to his former employees that in case Bryan was defeated business would be resumed did he not do his duty to his fellow man?

There are millions of men who voted for Bryan on the theory of experiment, assuming that times could not get worse and something might grow out of the experiment to make times better. Many thought that half dollars called dollars would help things. Business men don't reason that way. A man with ability to go into business and make a success of it never does it by trying experiments with his capital. He goes at it by applying business logic to all he undertakes and the best reasons as to cause and effect along this line succeeds best in business. Not one of that class of men was in favor of Bryan's election. They opposed it because the entire money proposition was rotten, contrary to business principles, to fact, and to the experience of the world and when they advised the American people as to what the effect of Bryanism would be it was better to follow their judgment than the vapors of a Bryan or a Jones. The opinion of the business world in matters of this kind is a safe guide to the prosperity of the country than the statements of Jones and his followers who are not engaged in business where labor is employed. What Mr. Jones calls coercion was only giving good advice and the result of Bryan's defeat shows that business men in these matters are more reliable than either Mr. Jones or Mr. Bryan.

Grateful Women Write Us Letters.

From every corner of the country come thankful letters written by those who have been lifted into cheerful, vigorous, healthy strength by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands on thousands of women have been relieved of the nerve-racking drag of weakness and pain. They have been made better wives and better mothers by having perfect health restored, and without the humiliating exposure of examinations so generally insisted on by physicians. The stereotyped treatment by "local applications" is seldom necessary, and there is no reason why modest, sensitive women need submit to them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of purely vegetable composition and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. It exerts a wonderful soothing, healing and strengthening power over woman's delicate organism. It is an invigorating tonic for the whole system, and is almost an infallible specific for the peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements of woman. To these causes may be traced the trouble of tired, nervous, irritable, worn-out women. Careless, easy-going doctors frequently treat their women patients for biliousness, nervousness, dyspepsia, liver or kidney troubles, when the real sickness is in the organs distinctly feminine, and no help can come till they are made perfectly strong and healthy in both structure and function which is brought about in due time by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Prescribed for 30 years by Dr. Pierce.

THE MATEBELE BUGABOO.

No Man Ever Saw Him, But He Gets All His Prey.

The following is an extract from a private letter lately received from a young Englishman who was farming at Matabeland at the time of the outbreak:

"The Matabeland and Matoppos Hill district, where the rising commenced, form a very difficult country. The natives living in the hills there were always a nuisance to Lo Ben, and when the columns came in they would not fight for him. The company never disarmed these men or took their cattle. They have been a great trouble ever since, and the native commissioner could never get out that way without six or eight police with him, and was constantly getting fired on. Twice it was announced that a large patrol with big guns and Maxims was going to knock them into shape and clear the hills, but it never came off.

"In the Matoppos hills, in a cave in a kraal of his own, dwells the M'limo, a Makaklala god, and though the Matabele heartily despised these people, their slaves, they feared their god very much, though many professed to disbelieve in him. He was always a thorn in the flesh to old Lo Ben, and to Moselelatsze before him.

"There is not, I believe, any such person as the M'limo. It is merely a swindle, run by a circle of men who wear their hair long and call themselves his sons. No one, white or black, has ever seen the M'limo. The method of procedure is that the sons go round the people and drum up presents for the god to insure good crops, etc. These presents, or offerings, are placed in the mouth of the cave and disappear. He is consulted from the mouth of the cave, and whether it is a whispering guller or ventriloquism is used no one knows; but the natives are immensely impressed by receiving answers from an apparently empty cave. Ever since the occupation of this country by us the natives have attributed all their ills to us. They said we brought the locusts, regardless of the fact that they were here two years before, and so on; but what rolled them most was the drought and consequent famine for two years past. They said we stopped the rain by shooting the crocodiles. The M'limo the who is at the bottom of the rising, had an easy task. He told the people that when the white men's blood was shed the rain would come; that Lo Ben was alive and coming with an impi from the north, and that he had made a spell which would turn all the white men's bullets into water. He took advantage, too, of the eclipse of the moon a short time back, saying he had done it as a sign to them, as also he had brought the rinderpest; but for some obscure reason he forbade the people to look. The rising was planned for the 25th of March, the day of the full moon. The plan was simplicity itself. Every nigger was to rise and murder his master in the night; but the plan was spoiled by the murder of a native policeman, causing the district I named before to rise prematurely. Curiously enough, on the 29th the rain came at last in deluges. The natives are grumbling terribly about the M'limo not having kept his contract about the bullets turning into water, and he replies that they spoiled his spell by looting when he told them not to do so."

HOGLE MUST GO

The Council Refused to Grant Him Another Saloon License.

MARSHAL MASON CALLED UPON

To Make Alderman Johnson Stop Talking and Sit Down when He Refused to Obey the Mayor—Saloon License and Cigarette Ordinance Makes Talk.

The meeting of the city council last evening was rather noisy for a time. Alderman Johnson made so much noise while talking about the cigarette ordinance that the mayor asked him to sit down. This Mr. Johnson refused to do and the city marshal was called upon and forced the alderman to take his seat. One matter of business which took up a great deal of time was the granting of saloon licenses. M. E. Hogle, who conducts a saloon on North Main street was refused a license and he will have to close his saloon by next Monday. All of the other saloon keepers were granted licenses. The clerk read the report of the finance committee approving the liquor bonds of the saloon keepers. There were fifty nine in all, fifty who had paid their money and nine who had not yet put up the necessary money. The report of the committee on the approval of the bonds was accepted and Alderman Johnson made a motion that those who had paid be granted licenses and that the other nine be given until next Saturday at noon to make the payment. Mr. Simpson said that there were two who should not be allowed to have licenses. One was M. E. Hogle and the other was Whittington. Hogle, he said, had been arrested repeatedly for breaking the laws and one of his fines had not yet been paid. The license was taken out in the name of his wife and she was not a resident of the state. The man was conducting a house of assignation over his saloon and the place was a disgrace to the city. Mr. Simpson said that Whittington and his wife had been arrested for being drunk and the alderman had seen them brought to the jail.

Mr. Abrams said that while perhaps the saloon keepers mentioned had overstepped the bounds slightly and had been caught there were others who had done the same thing but had not been caught and he did not think that their licenses should be taken away from them so suddenly. Mr. Simpson said that the council either had to quit or else back the police, and that it now became the duty of the council to do the latter. He was in favor of licenses but not in favor of such places as Hogle conducted. Mr. Abrams made a motion that license be granted to all the others and that these two be referred to the mayor and the city marshal. Mr. De Witt wanted the two to be voted upon separately. Mr. Johnson said that there were others and that if one was to be cut off they all ought to be. He was a bar tender and he didn't like to work on Sunday and wished that they would all close.

It being carried that the two licenses mentioned be voted upon separately, that of M. E. Hogle was taken up. Mr. Johnson made a motion that the licenses be granted to Hogle and Abrams seconded the motion. They were the only aldermen who voted in favor of the motion and Hogle was refused a license.

Mr. De Witt moved that Whittington be granted a license and Johnson seconded it. The license was granted, the vote standing 8 to 6. Those who voted against it were Carter, Hill, Irwin, Mathias, Simpson and Thayer. The nine saloon men who had not yet paid were G. W. Markwell, G. A. Mathias, J. C. Robinson, A. McMahon, A. Droll, Julius Blackburn, James Milligan and D. Brown. Mr. Carter said that the council had adjourned once to let the men get their money in and he thought they had plenty of time. He made a motion that these nine men be not considered but the motion was lost. Mr. Irwin thought that the time for these men who were behind should be extended until next Monday noon instead of Saturday and with notification the motion to grant the licenses was carried.

Bills Paid.

The clerk read a number of bills which were approved by the council and orders drawn for their payment.

The Cigarette Ordinance.

The clerk read for the first time the ordinance abolishing the sale of cigarettes. It states that it shall be unlawful to sell, give or deliver to any person cigarettes made of tobacco or any other substance. The fine is fixed at from $3 to $100. Alderman Abrams made a motion to lay on the table but this was lost. Johnson moved to suspend rule fifteen for the passage of the ordinance and then the trouble began. Mr. Thayer said that the matter should be referred to the ordinance committee so that it should be investigated as there was some question as to whether the law could be made to stick. Johnson then started off on an extended speech. He said it didn't "cut any ice" what Thayer thought about it. The city attorney should give his opinion now. He wanted to hear the attorney's opinion and he demanded it. Abrams yelled "Rats," but that didn't stop the fifth ward alderman. He told the mayor that he had demanded the attorney's opinion two years ago and that now he (the alderman) wanted it. Mr. Mathias called for someone to put Johnson out, but the latter said there was no one there who could do it. Johnson by this time was yelling at the top of his voice and pounding the desk with his fist. His actions seemed to impress the council as being ridiculous and the aldermen and mayor roared with laughter, but as he continued the noise the mayor said he was out of order and ordered him to be seated. This Mr. Johnson refused to do. Mr. Abrams suggested that the marshal be called. Johnson said, "You can call him if you want to," and this the mayor promptly did. Marshal Mason approached Johnson and ordered him to sit down, and pushed him into his chair. Johnson simply held up his hands and asked the marshal not to handle him roughly. He was quiet all the rest of the evening. The cigarette ordinance was referred to the ordinance committee. Johnson called for the eye and may vote but the mayor said the motion had been carried.

Oil Ordinance.

An ordinance governing the storage of oil was read for the first time by the clerk. It provided that oil, gasoline, naphtha, etc., shall only be stored in cellars when kept in tanks made according to certain provisions which shall be specified later. Only 100 gallons of any one kind of oil shall be kept at one time. The fine for the violation of the ordinance shall be from $20 to $200. It was referred to the ordinance committee.

Report of Committee.

The committee appointed by the council recommended that the sidewalk at the crossing at the corner of Clinton and Merkle streets remain as it is at present. The report was adopted.

Resolutions.

That B. B. Tuttle be granted permission to extend the wooden awning from the Bohon building on East Eldorado street west to west side of his building. Adopted.

That the superintendent of streets be instructed to bring side walks on Maryland street to grade. Adopted.

That $1500 be drawn from the general fund for the cleaning of gutters on all streets not paved and the street superintendent be instructed to commence work as soon as possible. The resolution was laid on the table as the clerk announced that the fund was already overdrawn.

That a drop light be placed at the corner of East Main and Jackson street. Referred to the water and light committee.

That the following articles be purchased for the use of the water inspector: 300 feet of 1 inch pipe, 200 feet of 5 inch pipe, 600 pounds of lead and packing. The resolution was adopted.

Sealed Bids.

Three sealed bids for the sewer in the alley first north of Eldorado street from Jasper to Stock street were opened. They were as follows: R. F. Kincaid, $1143, P. E. Gerber, $1044 87; Decatur Plumbing & Heating company, 37 cents per foot. The matter was referred to the public improvement committee and the work was awarded to the last named bidder. The council took a recess of fifteen minutes while the committee deliberated on the matter.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, to the inimitable wisdom of Providence, an honored and patriotic citizen of this community, Charles A. Ewing, has been called to his eternal rest. Do it.

Resolved that the city council of the city of Decatur, as the direct representatives of the people, deplore the irreparable loss and that the city council in a body attend the funeral. Adopted.

COULD NOT BEAR HIS WEIGHT

The Strange Affliction of Little Wilbur Robinson.

He Stopped Growing—Limbs Became Useless and He was Unable to Walk—His Cure Brought About in a Singular Manner.

Hearing that a child near Iowa Station, Lincoln County, had been greatly benefited by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, a representative of the Observer went thither to see and ascertain the extent of the benefit the child had received.

Riding out on December 5, 1895, to a little country cottage in the pine woods, a mile distant from Iowa Station, the reporter saw a bright-faced, young woman, a pure Anglo-Saxon type, with light hair and blue eyes, standing in the doorway with two plump, rosy-cheeked children half hiding behind her dress. Mentioning that he was looking for a family of Robinsons, the woman seemed at first a little suspicious.

"You're a stranger in my eye," she said. "I am trying to find a child named Wilbur Robinson, who was greatly benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

The young mother smiled and a pleasant look came into her eyes as she said, "Come in, and added, 'I guess that's the one,' pointing to the younger of the two little boys."

It was an humble home, the family being composed of that sturdy farming class that goes to make up one of the strongest and truest types of North Carolina's good people. The husband, Robert C. Robinson, runs the farm of 200 acres, but was off to the mill at the time.

The mother, Carrie L. Robinson, told a remarkable story of the cure of her little boy from the effects of a gripper. Her aged, white-haired mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Bandy, sat near and emphasized every word of the daughter. The little boy, Wilbur, who owed his recovery to Dr. Williams' effective remedy, played about the house and yard, and was into every conceivable kind of mischief. It really seemed that he must have taken too many of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so great was the energy with which he prosecuted his pranks.

Three times his mother had to stop her conversation and rush out to rescue the mother's bicycle, which was leaning against the house outside, and with which Wilbur was becoming almost too familiar.

This is the story the mother told: "Wilbur was born August 8, 1893. He was a stout, healthy boy till he was nearly five months old. Between Christmas and New Year's he took the gripper. A physician at Iowa Station attended him, and he was supposed to have recovered. But the after effects of the malady lingered with disastrous results. In March, 1894, his parents noticed that he could not stand upon his feet, although before his taking the gripper he could do so easily. He could not bear the weight of his body on his feet; his legs were not growing any nor the muscles in them developing. He was not treated, however, till the last of October.

When Mr. Robinson took his cotton to Lincoln, the country was also carried his baby along and a Lincoln physician prescribed for him, recommending a lotion for rubbing his limbs. This helped the child only temporarily. Twice afterward this physician was consulted. He told the parents that the child might some day be able to walk and again he might not. They would just have to let him 'grow along,' as the mother expressed it, and see what developed. At this period the child's legs appeared to be shrunken. As his mother says they were 'as soft as cotton.' Here was a boy fourteen months old who not only could not walk, but could not bear his weight on his feet.

In some way—they do not know how—a pamphlet found its way to the Robinson family. Old Mrs. Bandy fished it out of a bureau drawer. It had the picture of two dogs peeping over a fence on one cover, and on the other a herd of cows drinking in a cool stream near a bridge. Both on the faces and on the bridge, on the respective covers, was this line: 'Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.' When I read that those pills would build up the body, I felt that they were the things for Wilbur," said his mother.

"Old Mrs. Bandy sat up nearly all of one night reading this pamphlet, with all the testimonials it contained. A few days after they sent to one of the two village stores and got two boxes of the pills. This was about the last of November, 1894. Before he had finished taking the first box, the little fellow was able to bear his weight on his feet, and before the second box was all gone, he could hold a chair before him and push it across the floor.

"We began giving him a third of a pill at a time, afterward increasing the dose to a half, so they held out a long time," said his mother. "We commenced the second box in January, this year. We had to send to Lincoln, eight miles away, to get the next boxes. After taking the third box, in March, the child began to go a few steps at a time, but he didn't walk by himself till in September. The fourth box, or part of it, was administered in August.

The testimony of the mother was that the child's appetite and, indeed, his whole system was helped by the use of the pills. Mrs. Bandy, who had been looking over a sort of diary she keeps, at this point in the conversation, read the entry: 'Sept. 25th. Wilbur is able to walk alone by himself.' "After he once learned to walk," said his mother, "we could hardly keep him in sight of the house, and he was cured by four boxes, lacking ten pills. Mother says, and always has said, the Lord directed somebody to send that pamphlet of Dr. Williams' to us. You really believe the child's cure is due to Dr. Williams' Pills?" was asked.

"I am really convinced the pills cured him," the mother answered. "I haven't the slightest doubt about it. I feel the boy's grandmother chimed in: 'I'm just as sure of it as I am of living. I'll take an oath on the Bible that that is what did it.'"

The neighbors in all the section around the little village of Iowa Station know and talk about the remarkable cure of this baby, who might have been a cripple for life, had he not, even at the age of two years, one month and seventeen days, been enabled to walk for the first time by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

This story may seem to the reader like a fabrication, but is told as the child's mother told it to the reporter. In order to show their appreciation, Mrs. Robinson furnished the following testimonial and signed it. (She says she is willing at any time to make sworn affidavits to her statements.)

IRON STATION, LINCOLN CO., N. C., December 5, 1895.

My infant son Wilbur Lee, rendered unable to learn to walk, by the effects of the gripper, when he was about five months old, and the muscles in his legs developed by the use of less than four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, so that he is now a hale and hearty child. I am entirely convinced that his cure is due to these pills. I also state that the above statements made to the reporter of the Charlotte Observer are true.

SARAH A. BANDY, Wilbur Robinson, Jr. If a Bandy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

QUEEN MAKES FEW MISTAKES.

Why Her Opinion Is Respected by All of Her Subjects.

Just think of the blunders all living mortals have made, even Francis Joseph, of Austria, whom men now account a nestor, and all the premiers of our time and then reflect on this reign, in which there has never been a blunder great enough to be perceptible to the million eyes which always watch a court. It seems to us that wholly apart from the difficult question of the proper limits of loyalty to an individual, there is enough in the known facts to justify all the reverence with which the queen is regarded and which extends far beyond the limit of her scepter, wide as the limit has now become.

Foreigners occupy in many respects the position of posterity, and among foreigners capable of judging the reverence for the queen is at least as great as in England, her opinion when known to foreign court weighing at least as heavily as it does with her own ministers. This is due, say several of our contemporaries, to the intermarriages which have made her majesty the common ancestor in so many courts, in every court, indeed, not strictly Catholic, and no doubt the strange position of the queen in that respect is one reason for the special honor in which she is held abroad. But it is not the principal one. Relatives can hate one another very hard, and the queen is as greatly respected in Washington or New York as in Berlin or St. Petersburg.

Her majesty is great because her reign has been great, great in its enterprises, great in its successes, great, above all, in that compatibility which, owing mainly to the character of the sovereign, it has shown to be possible between a more than republican freedom and monarchical institutions. The British empire is the greatest object lesson ever given to the world to show that a state can enlarge its borders without living under tyranny and without universal military service. London Spectator.

Fallacy of Food Tables. Tables giving the respective percentage of nutriment in animal and vegetable foods are quite common and are often consulted by those wishing to gain nutriment from the smallest quantity of food matter. Such persons forget that the measure of nutriment to any individual case is not to be judged by a table showing the nutritive parts of food as determined by chemical analysis, but depends upon its digestibility in his or her particular case. Cheese, measured by the elements of its composition, is far more nourishing than beef, yet cheese is to most people difficult of digestion, and there fore beef in the majority of cases affords much more actual nourishment. All depends on the person. Many times food that is practically poison to one is nourishing and invigorating to another. We are not only fearfully and wonderfully made, but we are made so unlike in many respects that we must not take it for granted that another man's diet will suit us till we have tested it well.—What to Eat.

ENGLISH HOME LIFE.

Useful and Interesting—Free from the Plague of Money.

The English home life is ideal in many respects, and it would be a good thing if a bridal trip could be spent within its charmed circle by some of our young couples. Certainly the English understand home life better than we Americans do, and their principles in this line could be well adopted among us, and life would yield a richer harvest of love and association. Our days are crowded with the restless preparation for the coming to-morrow, while the English method is to get all the comfort and pleasure out of each day as it comes along. The day has its own life, and he is the wisest man who gets the most out of its short span. There is no blind hurry and there is a certain contented leisure in which to enjoy the present. I have observed it all through England. It is a lesson for the American to learn "to rest and be thankful."

The home is the center of love, social pleasure and comfort. It is not a mere place to eat and sleep and carry on the train of business followed all day in the office. There is a glow from the family hearth that has a spark that is akin to divine fire, which binds the whole family to the home for generations; and when once the doors have been opened to the guest every hospitality and kindness is shown him, combined with a genuine home feeling.

At morning prayers, master, mistress, children and servants are at least for once in the day all united. Breakfast all over England is at nine o'clock. It is set upon the table, the joints of cold meat on the sideboard, the bell is rung, the servant or housemaid goes about her duties and the breakfasters help one another. The maids of England are a delight after our independent, impudent, crude Irish servants. There is a mutual respect maintained between mistress and maid, and decidedly more consideration is paid in England to the servants than here. The slightest demand is always accompanied by a pleasant "if you please" and "Thank you." It is not considered well-bred to omit this little form. More servants are employed in the household, as the Englishman rarely does for himself what he can get anyone else to do for him. The master supervises the servants, the mistress the household. Cabs at cheap rates are always at hand, porters pick up your traps and bundle you into railway carriages. A cultivated English woman thinks her time too valuable to devote it all to housekeeping. She economizes in other ways and gets a housekeeper or excellent upper maid. Her own time is devoted to her children, her guests, her reading and her correspondence. If she entertains much she must keep abreast of all the topics of the day. Conversation must embrace all topics, if her dinner table is to be a success. The dinner hour is from seven to eight p. m., and even later. This gives the full benefit for the enjoyment of the long twilights in summer, when half-of-300 light means so much. It seems as if the people wished to get all the sunshine they could as an offset to the dreary months of fog.

The important epoch of the day is dinner. It is more or less a meal of ceremony, even in the humblest households. The Englishman does everything seriously, and his meals are never hurried over or slighted. At a hotel he prefers table d'hôte to the American plan of ordering à la carte. Here again one sees the time for everything and everything in its own due time. But I must say the long-drawn-out table d'hôte is a weariness to the spirits. Between four and five o'clock all the tea and luncheons in London are thronged, for "the cup that cheers," etc., is indispensable to the men, women and children. I think more tea must be consumed than in any other city of the world. Business is set aside and time taken for a rest and refreshment. Among the poorer classes this custom is also observed. Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

"Ever-Victorious Army." A Foreign Legion Organized by an American Sailor in China.

With a spirit of liberality and quick discernment little characteristic of his countrymen, Li Hung Chang early recognized the fact that the methods and weapons of Chinese warfare were antiquated and ill-suited to the work in hand, and he welcomed the opportunity afforded by his stay at Shanghai to introduce into the campaign modern military appliances. A foreign legion, enlisted from the unemployed and adventurous Europeans who frequented that port, was admitted into the Chinese army under the command of an American sailor named Ward, and which, on account of its brilliant successes, and following the Chinese practice of adopting high-sounding titles, was called the "Ever-Victorious Army."

Ward, after a thorough organization of his foreign contingent, and a series of triumphs over the rebels, was killed in an assault upon the enemy, and the command of the corps devolved upon Col. Gordon, who was detached from the British army for that purpose.

This foreign contingent was the most trustworthy ally of the Chinese general in the suppression of the great rebellion, and much fame has justly come to Gordon for the part he bore in the contest. But there is a general disposition on the part of British writers to belittle the services and smirch the reputation of the American, Ward, who is always styled by them an "adventurer." How he differed from Gordon in that respect is not apparent; but certain it is that he is entitled to the credit of having displayed marked military ability both in organizing his forces and in leading them in battle; and he demonstrated the wisdom of the Chinese commander in enlisting the corps, and its utility as a means of putting down the rebellion. No greater endorsement of his military genius could have been given than by Gordon himself in adopting his organization and following his methods to the smallest details.—John W. Foster, in Century.

"Papa, why do they call him the 'mother tongue'?" "Because father so seldom gets a chance to be called the other night." "No more his bicycle face."—Detroit Press.

Nearing the Goal—"Your husband is making money." "Yes, but by next summer he will be rich enough for somebody in the family to have his fever."—Chicago Record.

Gentleman—"My lad, can you tell me to the Bank of England?" Black (with withering scorn)—"Can you tell me I should be doing that?"—World's C.

Mr. Point Breeze—"Young I was always relating anecdotes, they are invariably poor ones." Frankston—"Yes; Home-wood good many 'poor relations'."—Lough Chronicle.

In reply to your inquiry concerning words there are in New (Great) Story, wrote the country to his correspondent, "we confess a face, that we are fairly corn- Y Y Tribune."

Wiggins—"Well, did you make take his words back as you make were going to do?" Wiggins—"I took them back, but he used over again more emphatically than before."—Somerville Journal.

Powerful Competition.—"Y man," said his father, "I think you a straightforward, energetic person, and I should not object to you being the son-in-law. However, daughter's wishes in such a matter must be consulted." "Do you not that she will eventually return to her father?" "Very likely. But you gave her time. She has just bought her bicycle, you know."—Washington Star.

ETIQUETTE AT THE BANQUET

How People Make the Life of a Banquet as Easy as Possible.

It would seem that most of the laws of the large business convention, our proud city understand to a degree the term "bank etiquette," as they have been in the element of time, and had been taught from head to understand its legitimate meaning. They arrange their deposits in the most satisfactory manner in the bank clerk, a delightful field. This regularity, while it shows the training of a tough business man, is attended with little or no effort on their part, means to the bank clerks the same of an infinite amount of hard, to labor. This method consists of placing all the bills, clean or ragged, of larger denominations together on top of whatever size package they are to make, keeping the one and two dollar bills strictly to the bottom.

Their clean, with little difficulty, rapid headway through his work, for he knows what he is doing. These deposits are made to the credit of the bank on ordinary days, but especially on heavy days, when they have all they can do to finish up the work.

It is interesting to note the marvelous capacity with which an expert through the bills, counting, sorting, and proving, all in a minute. You observe that often he is simply throwing out a certain amount of the work, far apart from the with a "There!" most strongly phrased and immediately spurs resume his usual place, not the disconcerted. The uninitiated justly by the sudden exclamation, to be easily and stares blankly at the whom he supposes to have been hit by an invisible scorpion or reptile. Certainly proves this particular to be a counterfeit, though taken the outsider fully 15 miles to distinguish between it and the the bill, much to the disgust of the person, who, at a single glance, detects, as he was at the rate of 40 a minute, and discarded it as quite as though it burned him.—Boston Transcript.

Qualifications Needed for Consulate. Anybody at all familiar with the duties of an American consul, anyone who knows what is expected of him by the department of state and who is called upon to do by the public, will agree that he should neither be a product nor the victim of capricious political partisanship. He should be looked upon his merits after an examination and retained upon some basis. There should be a certificate of merit and he should suffer from no incompetency. Primarily the consul should be a gentleman, meaning by this a honorable and educated man, with the amenities and good social society. The next and absolute necessary requirement, should be an intimate knowledge of the language of the post to which he is assigned, not only a professor of German, French or Spanish or Italian, but should be able to speak and write fluently the language of the country to which he is commissioned.—Scribner.

Fully Occupied. "Well, Charlie," said his aunt, "I don't see you on your return from the new hotel." "What did you do with all my suitcase?" "Oh, I was home my last about the day," said Charlie.

"Indeed! And what did you do after that?" "Oh, I spent the whole day in my room, and I was round the table."

He Had a Reason. "I don't see you on your return from the new hotel." "What did you do with all my suitcase?" "Oh, I was home my last about the day," said Charlie.

PERSONAL TRIBUTES.

Stevenson.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 6.—Vice President Stevenson was very deeply and quite visibly affected by the news of the death of Hon. Charles A. Ewing. He said:

"I am shocked, deeply by the news of the death of my kinsman. He was as dear to me as a brother. His is the second death of near relatives within a few months, the other being that of my cousin, Dr. McKenzie of Leroy, who also was very close to me.

"Mr. Ewing a few days ago seemed to be in the prime of his manhood and destined for many years of usefulness in his profession. He was ten years or so younger than I, but as we grew old the disparity of years is not so much noticed by us, and our ways and our sympathies come closer together. About 1849 Rev.
Fielding N. Ewing came to Bloomington and became the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of which he was pastor about ten years.

"During that time I was, for a time, a teacher. It was before the days of public schools and I was in charge of a private school. Charlie was one of my pupils. When Rev. Ewing closed his labors here the family went to Chicago.

"Mr. Ewing was a power in politics.
He was an earnest man of strong convictions and full of courage and was a convincing and pleasing speaker. When I was the candidate for the vice presidency in 1892, he went with me through the south and made effective speeches. When he espoused the cause of the National Democracy in this campaign he threw into the work the enthusiasm, force, courage and eloquence which characterized him in all that he did.

"Mr. Ewing was a model man in all the relations of life. As a father, as a lawyer, as a man of business and in politics, he was of the highest type. He was a man to whom one could point as an example or the emulation of the young.

"His surroundings were of the happiest character and his prospects were all that could have been desired.

"Mr. Ewing's father, who died sixteen years ago, was the brother of my mother.
My mother celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday last week, and on that occasion she received from her nephew a letter of congratulation and love that gave her great joy. She is most deeply affected by his death. The relations that existed between our families in Mr. Ewing's boy-hood in this city, which was then little more than a country village, were of the tenderest nature and they have been continued unbroken throughout the intervening years. The news of his untimely death is distressing in the extreme."

Presley.

Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 6.—Hon. Charles Adlai Ewing was a man among men possessing a naturally logical mind. He was a graduate of Princeton college and no pains were spared to cultivate an intelligent nature, strong and bright.

He was a wide reader, deeply instructed not only in those subjects relating to his own profession of the law, but in those bearing on political economy and theology. His reverend father, Rev. F. N.
Ewing, time and again remarked in his bright and happy way that Charley consoled him on intricate points of law, while he always consulted Charley on some abstruse matters in theology.

Mr. Ewing was a man actuated by principle. More sentiment, while he recognized it and appreciated it, yet he was not controlled by it when the question of right and wrong of justice or of injustice was involved. What was just came first, then the humanitarian. He united with the church when he was a boy, and ever took an interest in the subject of religion and the welfare and prosperity of the church of which he remained an honored member till the day of his death.

Meanness and littleness were abhorred by him in all the principles of life, hence he entertained broader views. He was a fine conversationalist and possessing a good memory and being a close observer of men and matters, as well as a wide reader, in conversation he was not only interesting, but instructive.

He was a loyal and devoted son and brother. As a husband and father he was tender and true, and one worthy to be held in honor and love as long as memory remains. W. H. Presley.

The News in Chicago—Resolutions.
The Chicago Tribune today in an extended reference to the death of Mr. Ewing prints the following: Secretary Spangler of the Sound Money Democratic committee telegraphed yesterday morning asking Mr. Ewing to be sure and be here today to attend an important meeting of the Executive committee. Within a half hour came the reply saying that Mr. Ewing was dead.

It came as a shock to the members of the committee here and to Mr. Ewing's many friends in the city, who were not even aware that he was seriously ill.

The Chicago Chronicle devotes two columns to a notice of the death and prints a two column likeness of Mr. Ewing.
The Chronicle says:

At a meeting of the state committee held at the headquarters yesterday afternoon the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

It has pleased God to remove from his labors our revered friend and associate, Charles Adlai Ewing, of Decatur, chairman of our state central committee, therefore be it

Resolved, That we, his fellow members of the honest money Democratic state central committee, in solemn meeting assembled, do now and here resolve and declare our profound grief and bereavement.

Our loss is the nation's loss, for when a great citizen dies the pulse of a nation's life beats feebler, and Mr. Ewing was a great citizen; great in spirit, great in endeavor, great in the moment of his death, for he died in the first flush of victory, the first martyr to the new duties of the hour, the new call to the nation's conscience.

His death was the result of his labors in the cause which has just triumphed. Of him truly might it be said that he died that his nation's honor might live. This man who was so modest that none ever truly knew his worth till, in that breathing of hot indignation that swept over this land when this nation's honor was asperged and assailed, he flowered out, great soul that he was, in a courageous, mighty cumulative wrath that found echo and response in heart after heart till the soul of this land was redeemed. His own sensitive honor made him quick and alive when the nation's honor was in question.

One of the first to offer himself for the war for national integrity, he is the first to have laid down his life. Many another has offered and given his heart and soul and strength, his warmest endeavor and his noblest hopes—but he has given his all. Brave, gentle, true Charles Adlai Ewing, noblest and knightliest of men, kindest and most considerate of companions, true in all his relations and affairs, he has passed away and gone, and we who remain sadly and tenderly offer this tribute to his memory, and to those whose love still follows him beyond the gate, wife, children and brethren, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy and unfeigned regret, and we join in an unfatering trust, that all is well with him who in this life met fortune, ill or good, with a constant cheer, and in that cheer we find a symbol that alike comforts us living and takes the sting from death for him.

May he who fought bravely find his rest and the reward that shall follow him.

Mr. Ewing's funeral is to be held at his home in Decatur tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. A special car will be attached to the Wabash train which leaves Chicago at 9:15 o'clock tonight, and a large number of prominent Democrats, including all of the members of the state committee, will be present at the obsequies. An elaborate floral representation of a "vacant chair" will be the floral offering of his associates on the sound money state committee.

Telegrams.

Many telegrams have been received by Mr. Ewing and the family. This message came last night:

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—H. Cren, Decatur, Ill. Am pained beyond expression to hear of my friend, Charles A. Ewing's death. He was a strong man and a sincere patriot. Please express my sincere sympathy to his family. T. A. Moran.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 6.—Miss Belle Ewing: Your telegram is a great shock to me. When I saw Charlie a few weeks ago he was the picture of health and was engaged in the brave fight for national integrity. I have always admired him and had the greatest regard for him since we were college mates. He was a leading man there as in the world afterwards.
Will you give to his family my sympathy in their great affliction. He is a loss to the country as well as to them.

George M. Davis.

JOLLIFF ON TUESDAY

Business Meeting of the Young Men's Sound Money Club

NEW LINE OF MARCH AND FORMATION

There Will be Speaking by Ex-Gov.
Oglesby and Congressman Cannon Tuesday Afternoon.

The called meeting of the Young Men's Sound Money club was held last night at Abbott's hall with President D. A. Mally in the chair. The attendance was large and enthusiastic. The purpose of the meeting was to perfect plans for the Republican jollification over the election of McKinley, Hobart, Tanner, Connolly and
